TENT=OLOGY

There is a great deal connected with the manufacture and sale of Tents and Wagon Covers that is not understood by the trade or general public.

First, we wish to state that the acknowledged standard width of duck is 29 inches for single and double filling, and 28½ inches for genuine army duck. Now a great many unscrupulous manufacturers make their tents and wagon covers of duck, 36, 40 or even 44-inch wide and brand or represent them to be full weight, which, while literally true, is the worst kind of deception because 44-inch 8-ounce duck is a much lighter fabric than 29-inch 8-ounce duck, and would actually weigh less than 5¼-ounce in 29-inch width. 44-inch 10-ounce would actually weigh less than 6 2-3 ounces in 29-inch width. Tents or covers made of such goods would be one-third lighter than represented.

TUCKER-DUCK tents and covers are FULL WEIGHT. Make the salesman tell you what his covers or tents will weigh and check his weights. We will be glad to give the proper net weight on any size tent or cover, and show you how to determine same if you do not know.

We wish to state in this connection that tents and covers do not always measure up exactly to the sizes they are commonly called. For instance a 10x12 tent actually measures 9½x12; a 10x13 wagon cover about 9½x12½.

Especially adapted for the lawn, the height of wall making entire space available. Awning in front making it cool and airy, but can make with regular door, if preferred. All our square hipped roof tents are roped and stayed in the best manner. Many tent manufacturers do not rope tents of this kind at all, making them almost worthless, as they will not set up in any shape, nor last any length of time.

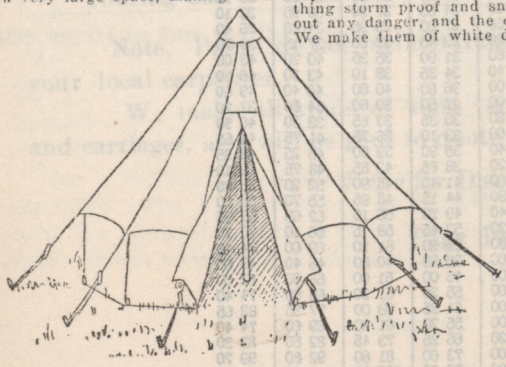
SIBLEY TENTS.

Sibley Tents have a great many advantages over other forms, and are particularly adapted for sportsmen and campers who desire to travel economically and light. The main point of advantage lies in the fact that they only require one pole, which if necessary can be cut from an ordinary tree; or, a pole can be dispensed with entirely and we can furnish with ropes, which can be attached to neighboring trees, at a small additional cost. It is roomy and comfortable, and has more available floor space than any other tent of its size made. The walls can be opened up or lifted, and will shade a very large space, making them very cool, and at night they can be shut down tightly, making everything storm proof and snug. An open fire can be built inside without any danger, and the opening at the top will act as a smoke vent. We make them of white duck, khaki cloth or silk, as desired.



Complete with Poles, Stakes, Guys, Etc.
With 2½-Foot Wall.

ASBESTOS STOVE PIPE HOLE.

In cold weather a stove in a tent is always an appreciated luxury, and many times a positive necessity, when the tent is of a style that cannot be heated from a fire in front. Such a stove is always very handy for use in bad weather for the preparation of simple meals, drying out clothes, etc. We place ove pipe holes in any tent as follows: An extra piece of material sewed to the tent as a reinforcement and in which is inserted a ecially-made wide stovepipe collar of asbestos. This thoroughly rotects the tent from scorching or burning, and as it is quite flexi- le will roll up snugly with the tent. It is perfectly noiseless, even i a wind. At the opening is placed a wide flap, of the same material s in the tent, which is rolled up and tied with tapes when pipe is in se. When the pipe is not in use the flap is lowered and tied in place ith tapes, effectually closing the opening and making it thoroughly ater tight.

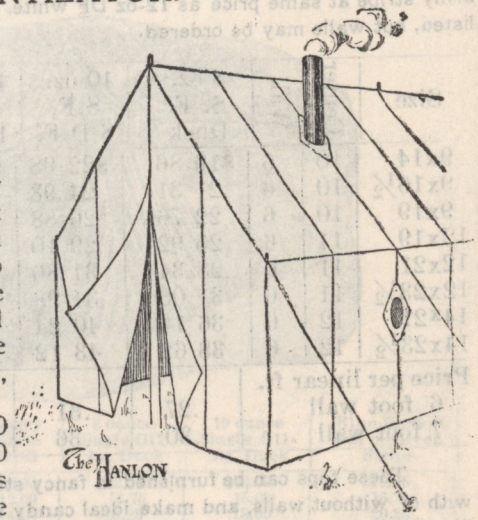
THE HANLON STOVE-PIPE RING AND WINDOW VENTILATOR.



The Hanlon tent ring has one very important advantage. It can be put in by anyone without mutilating the tent. Simply rip the tent and insert the ring, and in summer when the stove is no longer needed, take out the ring and sew up the rip and tent is same as new. The rings are made in two styles, single and double plate.

Middle Pieces for Bail Ring Tents

Prices in this list are for middle pieces, complete with quarter poles, wall poles, stakes, block and tackle, and main guys, but without walls. Middles are roped, stayed and reinforced in the same manner as oblong round end tents. Lacings are interchangeable.

In ordering middle pieces to fit into other tents than those made by us, give length of rope from ridge to eave. Describe style of bail ring wanted. State whether lacings are all the way over or on one side of bail ring only with rings on the other. Also state whether rings are to right or left of bail ring as you stand facing the bail ring when the middle is stretched before you. Give distance from eave to first lacing ring and distance between the rings, and their numbers. A rough diagram accompanying this information will insure a correct fitting middle piece.

Cog or Belt Chain Roller Awning

The above cut shows the Cog and Belt Chain Roller Awning, which is used extensively in most of the large cities. The great advantage of this awning is for large and wide store fronts, as it can be made as long as 75 feet by having a number of supports to the roller.

It rolls up close to the building, making a much neater appearance than in pull-up awnings. It can be made with ends, or wings, if desired, but looks much better without them. The awning can be lowered to any desired angle and will remain there when set.

DIRECTIONS FOR PUTTING UP COG OR BELT CHAIN ROLLER AWNINGS

Determine the place where awning is to be fastened to building at extreme right and left ends at top, at which point attach the two brackets, to which we have already secured the journal boxes. The bea ings of these journal boxes must be on a perfect level with each other. After these top brackets are securely fastened to building, draw a chalk line from center to center of journal boxes across building, then get the center between these two brackets, at which point will be the place to attach center support or chair, which consists of two parts, top and bottom, and so marked; then fit the center support to building by placing top part over chalk line and bottom part immediately under chalk line and top part; have the chalk line in the center between top and bottom parts of center support or chair; mark off these points where center support is to be fastened to building, then attach the bottom parts securely to building, then place the large top roller in position into journal boxes, then tack the awning across this roller, after which fasten the top part of center support or chair securely to building, which will complete the top fastenings of awning. The bottom fastenings of these awnings are the same as in the ordinary pull awnings. Liberal discount.

ROLLER DROP CURTAINS—For Front or Ends of Permanent Awnirgs

Roller is put in hem at bottom of curtain. Rope fastens with screw eyes on outside of curtains at the top, loops down around the roller and up again through pulleys on the inside and the ends lead through pulley at the end, as shown in cut, and down the post. By pulling on the ropes the roller starts upward. Can be held at any height by fastening ropes to cleat. Send size for samples and prices. In ordering state clearly which is up and down and which distance across.

N. B.—In above picture pulley and cleats are put on outside of awning to show how they are reefed, but in use they are put on the inside. Write for prices.
